"If He Looks Like You Think A Psychiatrist Should, He Isn't One"

BY R. E. FREDERICKS

Dr. David Harold Fink of Carmel Highlands, psychiatrist and author of three best sellers and more than sixty magazine articles, does not look like a television actor's interpretation of either a psychiatrist or author.

Mr. George Cordingly, who once leased office space to the doctor, says, "When he told me he was a psychiatrist, I could hardly believe him. I told Dr. Fink that he looked more like an iron molder to me. The doctor asked me how many psychiatrists I knew. Of course, there weren't any in Beverly Hills in 1938, so I didn't know any. Dr. Fink said, 'If a man looks like what you imagine a psychiatrist looks like, he isn't one'."

Nevertheless, Mr Cordingly unwittingly hit the nail almost on the head. Dr. Fink has been a sheet metal worker. He has been a plowhand. "When I was twelve years old, I could plow a furrow as straight and as deep as any man in Clinton County, Michigan," he said proudly. In addition to these two accomplishments, he has been a road builder, working his way through the University of Michigan by hauling ashes from the White Swan Laundry. "They paid me twenty cents an hour" and thriftily using those ashes to construct driveways for the farmers on the outskirts of Ann Arbor, Michigan.

The variety of things he has done is the key to his character. He sold newspapers while going to high school in Detroit, Michigan. He has taught school ungraded rooms for the mentally retarded, shorthand and typing in high school, and social psychology at the University of Michigan. He has been a teacher of physical education, and to eke out his salary, taught English Morris dancing at night. "I had studied under Cecil Sharpe who researched the English folk music and dances," he explained. While teaching at Michigan, he was a regular contributor to the book review section of the Detroit News. At medical college, he was laboratory assistant in biological chemistry; at the same time he ran the blood chemistry determinations for Providence Hospital.

"Those were busy days," he admitted. "I began my blood chemistries at six thirty in the morning. At eight, I was in medical school. The school day ended at five in the evening, so I'd hop into my jalopy and drive eight miles to Teachers College, where I taught a class in English Literature from six to nine. Then home, to study my lessons for the next day."

Dr. Theodore Hunt, a former classmate, said, "Dave just can't be happy unless he is holding down three full-time jobs at one time."

"Work," said Dr. Fink, "is a friend who has never let me down."

Dr. Fink's first great success, Release From Nervous Tension, was not written for publication. "I wrote it simply to save my patients both time and money," he said. "Instead of talking about themselves, they'd ask me lots of questions about psychiatry. The questions were sensible and I knew they had a right to the answers."

Lad From London Is Exchange Student Next Fall At CHS

Simon Wadleigh of London, England, will attend Carmel High School next year as the American Field Service exchange student. He will be the guest of twins Polly and Steven Gann and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Gann of Pebble Beach. Carmel High students are providing the $650 necessary to pay his fare to Carmel. They have raised the money by sponsoring various events. Latest of these was the theater party last month which netted $340 for the AFS student exchange fund. Pat Timothy and Robin Way arranged through the courtesy of Thomas Graff, manager of the Carmel Theater, for an evening showing of a special movie. Students sold tickets for the event with proceeds swelling the AFS bank account.

Planners Pushed By Sudden New Carmel Knolls Map

Attorney Gordon Campbell attempted to convince Carmel Planning Commissioners yesterday afternoon that they will be tilting at windmills if they oppose Carmel Knolls subdivision before the County Planning Commission on May 27. The Knolls map provides slightly over half acre lots; the Carmel Planning Commission has been holding out for acre minimum. Mr. Campbell represented Monterey Peninsula Associates, developers of the property at the mouth of Carmel Valley. Carmel Knolls subdivision is planned for land between the proposed Hatton Canyon freeway and Rancho Rio Vista.

According to Mr. Campbell the Carmel Valley Master Plan designates that property east of the westerly Rancho Rio Vista boundary is to be a transition area with development of less than one acre building sites permissible. This area includes Carmel Knolls.

At present the area is in interim zoning of one acre building sites until the County Board of Super-

Dr. Grant Fletcher Wins Seat On Carmel School District Board

Dr. Grant Fletcher of Carmel Valley was elected to the single vacancy on the Carmel Unified School District Board Tuesday by a heavy majority. He polled 1009 votes; Dudley Swim, 392; Joe Walsh, 162. There were five write in votes: Peter Dyer, John Walsh, Remsen Bird, Charles Fonteneau and Tal Josselyn.

Dr. Fletcher will take his place on the board July 1 when Glenn Leidig's term expires.

In the contest between Mrs. Esther Smith of Carmel Highlands and A. B. Ingham of Pacific Grove for County Board of Trustees, District 1, Ingham polled 5,283, Mrs. Smith 2,418 throughout the district. In Carmel, the vote was: Ingham, 844; Mrs. Smith, 596.

Dorothy Roddick of Soledad, running unopposed for county board for area No. 4, received 1186 in the Carmel district; over 6000 in the county at large.

Council-Planners Score Zero In Motelmen Fight

Carmel celebrated National Motel Week with a special joint meeting of the city council and planning commission yesterday, city attorney in attendance, to hunt for a legal way of preventing further motel building in Carmel and to chastise the owners of the existing ones, who have a six million dollar investment in their business and made the mistake of bringing it to the attention of the city council in a letter last week.

There are 45 motels in Carmel, totalling 548 units. These figures do not include two large and three small hotels with 174 rooms, nor the 41 dwellings in the residence district each licensed to accommodate three paying guests—for a city with a population of 4398.

Every month there are plans for one, two or three more new motels of from 20 to 40 units each before the planning commission for design and landscape approval.

Mayor John Chitwood told the planning commission yesterday that he was "disturbed at the tone" of the Carmel Motelmen's Association's letter, which protested that the planning commission had asked the American Automobile Association to design an AAA approval sign for the local motels more in keeping with Carmel than the familiar yellow AAA diamond. The motelmen complained that the planning commission had not consulted them before asking the AAA to design something special for Carmel, that their motels need the standard sign for the good of their business, which is a six million dollar investment and must be protected.

"This is pressing hard for their ostentatious displays and indicates the line of pressure we'll receive in

Planners Approve 55 More Motel Units, One Apartment House

Two multiple dwellings were studied by Carmel Planning Commission yesterday afternoon. Keith Evans presented plans for a 32 unit motel on the East side of Junipero Street between Fifth and Sixth Streets and Fredrick S. Farr plans for a six unit apartment building on the East side of Monte Verde Street South of Seventh Avenue.

The planning commission unofficially indicated that both sets of plans were acceptable although some parking spaces for the Farr units might prove difficult to use. Official action will be taken on the two buildings at the regular session of the Carmel Planning Commission on May 28.

Richard Catlin was granted a building permit. Within a period of 180 days he will begin construction of Tradewinds Motel at Mission and Third Streets. The building will have 23 dwelling units.

PADRE NINE LEADS B-DIVISION BASEBALL RACE

Carmel High's varsity baseball squad jumped two big hurdles in the CCAL B-Division baseball chase during the past week, clipping the hard-pressing Hollister Haybalers, 7 to 1, and mauling the Live Oak Acorns, 9 to 3. The win over Hollister pulled the Padres into a tie for the top spot and by whipping Live Oak the Carmel nine vaulted into a half game lead over Hollister and Gilroy. This Friday's action finds King City at Hollister, Carmel at Gonzales, and San Lorenzo at Gilroy. Crucial games are on tap next Tuesday when Gilroy clashes with Hollister and Carmel travels to Pacific Grove. This has been one of the tightest races in the history of the CCAL with the winner likely to be decided during the final week of the season.

Carmel's win over Hollister evened the score for an earlier defeat at the hands of the Haybalers. In the first meeting at Hollister, the Haybalers clubbed the Padres, 8 to 5, and shunted the local preps into the second division. However, on their home field, the Carmel lads played a different brand of ball and had wrapped up the game in the third inning with a five-run rally. Tim O'Shea pitched another good one in registering his fourth win of the campaign, striking out 14 Haybaler swingers.

The Padres had a tough time getting started against the stubborn Live Oak team and were trailing by one run going into the fourth heat. In a big fourth-inning rally, Carmel got runs in bunches as a result of wild Live Oak pitching and some solid stickwork by Bud Conroy, Ron Faia, and Joe Mason. Faia was the top hitter for the Padres in this one, stroking a solid three-for-four including a long home-run smash. Tim O'Shea threw a two-hitter at the Acorns to pick up his fifth win of the season and establish himself as the leading pitcher in the CCAL's B-Division.

CARMEL MERCHANTS WIN PRE-SEASON SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT

Running their win streak to seven straight by winning four games in the Peninsula Pre-Season Softball Tournament, the fast-improving Carmel Merchant nine easily topped the field in the A-Division tournament play. Manager Paul Artellan's Merchants opened tournament play by clipping Rasmussen & Moody in the opener, came back the next night to wallop the Big Sur Naval Air Station, shutout the 19th Hole aggregation, 3 to 0, in the semi-finals, and blanked the same team, 1 to 0, to win the tournament title. By their winning performance in the Pre-Season Tournament, the Merchants establish themselves as the top softball team in this area and will naturally be the target for all challengers.

Excellent pitching jobs by Johnny DeAmaral and Paul Ricketson highlighted the winning efforts of the Merchant nine on the way to the tournament title. In the semi-final game, DeAmaral tossed a no-hit no-run game at the 19th Hole crew as fine fielding performances by Jack McGaughey, Walt Frey, and Pete Fisher sparkled in the field. Paul Ricketson pitched the title-clincher in the finals, blanking the opponents with a two-hitter in which only three men reached second base. Paul also

A TYPICAL OLD CARMEL RESIDENTIAL LOT — FOR SALE

We checked with a celebrated architect, the lot hunted all over Old Carmel.

Requirement: a smallish site within honest walking distance of the grocery stores. Architect said, Okay. This is a sound buy, (or so this buyer was advised) because come further devaluation (Ha) or not, it's Old Carmel, it's for children and dogs, and its' safe for play. The architect said, build on it and get to Ocean Ave. afoot, which is what we wanted.

Reason for selling is that we promptly plunked down a deposit and then found some acreage down the coast. As seller, I advise the reader to buy this lot. Don't forget our evaluation was based on the superb neighborhood situation, the true distance to shopping, and some fine oak trees.

The price of $8,200.00 is not a starting offer, but the bedrock as far as we are concerned.

Pat Brown Speaks On Education, Labor At Monterey Rally

Friday night in the Armory at Monterey Peninsula College State Attorney General, Edmund G. "Pat" Brown, candidate for governor of California, told a large audience that the school system is in need of active financial and moral support if adequate facilities are to be provided to accommodate the ever-increasing number of students. Brown stressed that more prestige and appreciation should be given those who choose teaching as a career. He said, too, that the financial aspects of teacher salaries should be examined to attract more teachers. Brown, one of whose two daughters was a teacher before her marriage, emphasized the need for a tougher curriculum in high schools and colleges. (Barbara Brown, incidentally, is the wife of Pat Casey of Carmel, who graduated from Carmel High.)

Ralph Smith, instructor in political science at MPC, introduced Brown and State Senator Fredrick S. Farr, who accompanied the Attorney General on his Peninsula trip. Following the MPC talk a reception was held at the Casa Munras so that local residents could meet Pat Brown, and Mrs. Brown.

In his talk Brown said that he did not feel that the controversial "Right to Work" measure should be the main issue of the campaign. He said, instead, that rather than undue emphasis on "Right to Work," concern should be directed at getting persons "Back to Work." Brown stated that he was equally opposed to any mandate that would either force or prevent an employer from signing a contract with a labor union. Brown said also that as a result of the McClellan Committee disclosures, and from his own experience as Attorney General of the country's second largest state, he believes judicious labor reforms are in order. A question and answer period followed the talk.

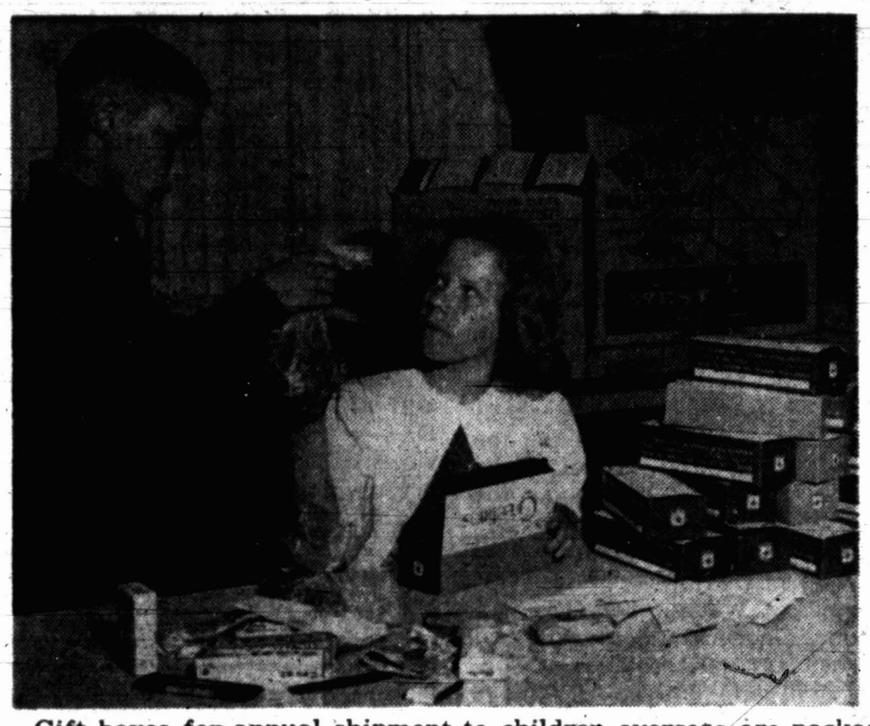
BAROQUE MUSIC CONCERT

The Musical Art Club will present The Madrigal Singers of Pacific Grove and the Salinas Recorder Group in a program of Baroque and pre-Bach music at the Carmel Art Gallery Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

The Madrigal singers are a group of music teachers who meet informally for recreation singing under the direction of Morris Dill. Miss Alice Dawson leads the Salinas group, three recorder players with violin and cello accompaniment.

The concert is open only to club members and their guests. Interested persons may join the Musical Art Club and obtain season tickets for the concert series at the door the evening of the performance. Joseph Axup, president, will explain the aims of the organization to those who phone FR 5-8468.



Gift boxes for annual shipment to children overseas are packed by these Carmel Junior Red Cross members, 11-year-old Jeff Knowles of Carmel Woods School fifth grade, and Betty Haak 10, a fifth-grader at Sunset School. Letters are put in each package, inviting replies. The latter are translated for the Village younsters by Army Language School personnel. —ARTHUR MCEWEN PHOTO.

Memorial Show For Mary Miller At Craft Studios

A memorial show of the paintings of the late Mary Miller opened on May 15 in the Carmel Craft Studios. The show remains on display until June 15. Hours are from 10:00 o'clock in the morning until 5:30 in the afternoon, daily, except Sundays when the exhibit is open from 1:00 o'clock in the afternoon until 3:00.

Mrs. Miller was engaged in painting a mural on the front of the Craft Studios' building when she became ill and was only able to finish the first panel. Original plan for the outdoor painting was that it should trace the history of Carmel from the coming of the Padres to the present day.

She studied at the Los Angeles Art Center, and the University de Bella Artes at San Miguel de Allende, Mexico, before coming to Carmel with her husband Fred Klepich. She was an exhibiting member of the Carmel Art Association, active in local art circles, and closely associated with the development of the Craft Studios. She died on October 2, 1957.

Louisa Jenkins Donates Mosaic For Priory Benefit

A mosaic, Virgin Interceding, the work of Louisa Jenkins of Big Sur, has been donated for the benefit of St. Andrew's Priory, the Benedictines of Valyermo, California. Donations towards this mosaic are being taken locally at Lial's Music Shop at the corner of Ocean Avenue and Monte Verde Street. The winner will be notified by mail on June 1. The mosaic is on display at 157 Maiden Lane, San Francisco.

Louisa Jenkins studied art under painter and designer Gonchora in Paris and gathered technical advice from artist and sculptor friends. She has also studied European and Middle Eastern art masterpieces. Her personal style of mosaic art comes from the way she achieves textural effects from a wide variety of materials. In addition to mosaic stones imported from Italy, she employs beach pebbles and shells, crystals, minerals and coal. She has also used lava asbestos rock, irridescent furnace slag, colored quartz, pyrites, marble and broken bits of household dishes.

Reproductions of her work and articles about her technique have appeared in national, architecture, art, liturgical, craft, news, household furnishing and literary magazines.

Virgin Interceding is 24 by 40 inches in size and has been exhibited in galleries in Washington, D. C., Boston, Illinois, Wisconsin, New York, Carmel, Denver and San Francisco.

Most of Louisa Jenkins' work is done at the request of architects and decorators who incorporate it into their buildings as an architectural unit. Last year Louisa Jenkins was given an honorary Doctor of Law degree by St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Indiana, for her contribution to religious art.

rowing, rugby and cricket. He likes American jazz and photography, cycling, motoring about the country, reading and "just sitting, chatting and exchanging ideas with people."

His father works for a medical book publishing firm in London and his mother is secretary to the editor of "a large national newspaper."

Simon will be a member of the senior class at the High School as will the Gann twins.

This summer Mr. Gann, author of American best sellers, will sail his boat, the Albatros, to Europe with his son Steven as a member of the crew. They plan to see Simon Wadleigh in England so that he will not be a complete stranger to his "family" when he arrives in Carmel next fall.

Polly Gann will not be on the Albatros trip as she is going to Scandinavia in June to live with a Swedish family for three months. She was chosen by the American Field Service national office to represent Carmel High School abroad as a summer exchange student. Polly will travel to Europe and return on a specially chartered ship. All the passengers will be American students who have just completed their junior year in high school. These students pay their own passage but are entertained by foreign families for the summer months.

The American Field Service student exchange program was organized to establish international understanding by having high school age students live in foreign countries as members of a family. Each American school accepting a foreign student for a year and providing transportation funds can nominate candidates from its student body "to represent American youth abroad" the next summer. Carmel High School has participated in this program for seven years. This year's foreign student is Dagmar Ludwig from Germany.

Seniors On The Go Until "Dead Week" Then Graduation

Friday the thirteenth of June, 89 Carmel High School seniors will graduate in ceremonies in Sunset School Auditorium. Neil Giarratana is valedictorian for the class of 1958, Douglas McAulay, salutatorian, and Gary Bradburn, class speaker. Student body president Roger Fremier will lead the Salute to the Flag and class president Douglas McAulay present the class gift to the school. Julie Sargant is vocal soloist on the program, Renee Myette piano soloist and the Senior Ensemble will play togther for the last time.

Principal Warren Edwards will announce honors and awards won by members of the class of '58. The Gold C winner will be announced by Superintendent of Schools Stuart A. Mitchell who will also present the class to the audience. Gordon Campbell, president of the board of trustees, will award diplomas. The graduates will march up the aisles to the stage to Elgar's Pomp and Circumstance processional and leave the auditorium to the Triumphal March from Verdi's Aida, both played by the Carmel High School Orchestra. The Reverend H. M. M. Nicholas, assistant rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, will give the Invocation.

Graduates will receive parents and friends informally in the patio after graduation.

Official graduation events started last weekend with the Junior-Senior Prom on Saturday night in the High School gymnasium when the seniors were guests of the junior class. Monday is to be Senior Teaching day. Members of the class of '58 will replace teachers at the High School. Tuesday the junior class will entertain the seniors again at a luncheon in the cafeteria. On Wednesday the seniors will turn over the school to the newly-elected student body officers, all underclassmen, then leave for the Senior Picnic at Big Sur. On Thursday they will attend classes in costume for Senior Dress Up Day and give their Senior Assembly during which the Class Will will be read. Friday, Memorial Day is a holiday. The following week is Dead Week for studying before final examinations which end with graduation.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone

WINS RACE

The recent Yearling Special Pigeon Race from Klamath Falls, Oregon, was won by a homing pigeon belonging to Gerald Artellan of Carmel Highlands. Second place in the Old Bird Race was taken by a pigeon belonging to J. Barbier. Weather was good for the event and the Artellan pigeon travelled at the rate of 1096.17 yards per minute. The Barbier bird arrived at its destination travelling an average of 1118.36 yards per minute.

Among other local pigeons in the races were one owned by Johnny Scott which came in fourth in the yearling event and Maurice Hanssen's bird, fifth. In the Old Bird Race Johnny Scott's entry was third, Hanssens' fourth and Artellan's seventh.

Psychiatrists Don't Look Like You Would Think

but the process of briefing those patients took up a lot of their time. This slowed up therapy and cost my patients too much money. So I noted down the questions, wrote out the answers and had my writing mimeographed. After that, when questions were asked I'd simply give my patients mimeographed pages to read at their leisure."

A friend took a number of these mimeographed pages to Mr. Richard Simon of Simon and Schuster. Mr. Simon offered to publish them, saying that this would be the first book he ever published because it put him to sleep.

"I didn't think the book would sell, so I decided to buy the unsold copies to give to my patients instead of the mimeographed pages," Dr. Fink admitted.

The book has sold 300,000 copies to date, is still in wide demand, and has been translated into seventeen foreign languages. The publishers have just ordered a new printing of fifteen thousand copies.

Dr. Fink's second book, Be Your Real Self, was published in 1950. His third book, For People Under Pressure, written while he was vacationing on the Peninsula, was published after he came here to live permanently in 1956.

Dr. Fink wanted to be a writer as far back as he can remember. "My earliest efforts failed, because I didn't know enough about people. In order to write, you have to know what makes people tick. But, I just couldn't understand human nature. I felt that I was completely ignorant, but somewhere, somehow, I must find the answer to my problem."

To find the answer, he majored in social psychology at the University of Michigan. The war interrupted his studies, but after his discharge from the Air Service in 1918, he returned to the University of Michigan to resume his studies under Dr. Charles Horton Cooley, whom Dr. Fink describes as America's first and greatest social psychologist. Later he taught social psychology at Michigan for two years and continued his postgraduate studies.

Failing to find his answer in books, he gave up teaching to become head of the research department of the Detroit Community Fund. Still later he took an executive job in a national social work agency, which enabled him to travel and lecture all over the United States. Still, he was not satisfied.

"Man's greatest tragedy is the unlived life, the potential that is never realized," Dr. Fink said. "I had no desire to act the central role in this tragic drama. My life's purpose was to express myself in writing, but only after I was sure that I knew what I was writing about. So I threw over my established career and enrolled as a freshman in the Detroit College of Medicine and Surgery. I was determined to make myself able to write authoritatively about people, even if that meant that I had to begin my schooling all over again in a freshman class in anatomy."

After graduation from medical college and two years of internship, including a surgical residency, he accepted a position on the fulltime staff of the Veterans Administration at Wadsworth Hospital, Los Angeles.

"The V. A. gives a doctor wonderful training in psychiatry," he said. "I stayed with them for eight years."

It was after he left the Veterans Administration to become the first psychiatrist to practice in Beverly Hills that Dr. Fink returned to his writing. Naturally, his books deal with various aspects of emotionally induced disease, together with techniques for guiding emotion rationally into creative and healthful channels.

"Aside from the fact that I like to write," he said, "I do so to win popular acceptance of the idea that emotion is a factor in both health and disease. We doctors have been taught to treat not only pathological conditions, but the whole person. But the history of medicine proves that doctors can do only as much as the public will allow them to do. For example, we can eradicate smallpox because the public has come to accept vaccine without fear. Another example. For years, women and babies died in childbirth, murdered, you might say, by the prejudices of prudes; but after the public was educated to accept proper obstetrics care, the mortality rate of mothers and infants was cut down to its present low rate. The well-trained, conscientious doctor of today deserves well-informed, cooperative patients. My job is to disseminate knowledge in easily understood language, to enable the busy doctor to do his work without spending hours explaining to a patient what the patient can learn in a few hours of easy reading."

"Furthermore," he went on, "the public should be protected against frauds and quacks who darken counsel with their little knowledge. In one such case a woman suffering from tuberculosis was told that her weakness, loss of appetite, chest pains and loss of weight were all caused by her husband's inconsiderate behavior. The irregular practitioner advised this woman to seek a divorce. Fortunately, her lawyer sent her to a psychiatrist who recognized the symptoms of disease and put her under the care of a specialist in lung diseases. I am glad to say that today both her physical and marital problems are a thing of the past. I was not the psychiatrist who made the proper diagnosis, but I was the man who wrote the book which the lawyer had read, so, indirectly, my work bore fruit."

Dr. Fink and his wife live in the Carmel Highlands where they built their home two years ago. "Monterey County has everything" Dr. Fink exclaimed enthusiastically. "Intelligent, civic-minded people, natural sylvan and seascape beauty, marvelous climate. We used to come here on our vacations. Now, every morning is the beginning of a new vacation. And I always do my best writing while on vacation."

Since Dr. Fink spends some of his vacation time working professionally; some of his time serving as secretary-treasurer of the Carmel Highlands Association; some of his time serving on the board of directors of the Monterey Peninsula Committee on Alcoholism; and some on other civic organizations, he was asked when on this "vacation" he finds time to write.

With a twinkle in his eye, he replied, "A writer is a person who is writing, regardless of whatever else he might be doing. He is writing when he is standing at the window with his hands in his pockets, looking at the waves breaking on the rocks of Point Lobos. He writes when he sleeps. If he isn't writing twenty-four hours a day, he isn't a writer."

Music On The Peninsula

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

An unusual recital presented by Remo Scardigli drew a good house to the Craft Center last week to hear Fred Stockton, classic guitarist, from San Jose. There are not many who have brought the guitar to concert virtuosity, and Stockton, while not exhibiting the brilliancy or technical bravura of some in the concert field, charmed his audience with an inately sensitive musical feeling and artistic phrasing and expression, drawing from his instrument a quality of tone which seemed particularly sympathetic as guitars go.

His program contained eighteen numbers and two encores with predominance of Spanish composers including Villa Lobos, Albeniz, Braga, Tarrega and others. Also Schubert's Serenade and variations on a Theme of Mozart's by Fernando Sor were included, two difficult forms for legato on fret manipulation. They drew strong applause. The Habanera by Yuez that opened, and the Augustin Castellon by Farruca that followed established the player's skill at producing sensitive sonority. A Concert Etude and Preludio by Torroba as well as the first of two Minuets by Sor were particularly appealing, to which the audience quickly responded. The guitar has a special attraction for many, and Remo Scardigli is to be commended for bringing a performance of it to the Center. Stockton has already established a two-day-a-week visit to a studio in Carmel for teaching, so we will look for more guitar playing here.

I witnessed a performance of The Mikado at the New Monterey Bay View School which, though dragging and diffident in the first part, did great credit as a whole to the young people and Director Manhire. Camille Olieta accompanied throughout. The orchestral selections and overture were played exceptionally well by the High School Orchestra conducted by Clifford Anderson. The entire cast was too numerous to mention but Ernie Tweedy deserves praise for his spirited conception of Ko-Ko, Karen Beswick for her Yum-Yum solo, and Louise Moore who really showed talent and voice as Pitti-Sing. Also the Girls' Chorus sang harmonically much better than the men's. Katisha's difficult dramatic part was filled with reserve but some ability by Rose Marie Ferrante. The whole opera was an ambitious venture for a High School.

CHS Seniors Present "Blithe Spirit" At Sunset On Fri.-Sat.

The Senior Class at Carmel High School will present Noel Coward's comedy, Blithe Spirit, on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:00 o'clock in Sunset School Auditorium. In the cast are students Kit Jones, John Morse, Janie Brandon, Janet Barson, Brenda Buerger and Gay Morris. Robert Wilson is director.

The play has provided the student players an opportunity to investigate unusual characters in unusual conditions. Friday and Saturday nights' audiences will have an opportunity to see crystal ball consultations, seances, hallucinations and bicycle enthusiasts; hear discussions of glands and "the other world"; and meet the type of person partaking in such activities.

The cast has had an enjoyable time putting the show together, according to their director, and are ready to give their interpretation of the play to the public.

Lucile Burnett

Mrs. Lucile Hoyt Burnett died on the morning of May 16 in her home at Monte Verde Street and Fifteenth Avenue after a short illness.

She was born on November 29, 1884, in Wyandotte, Michigan. Before coming to live in Carmel a year ago, Mrs. Burnett resided in Denver, Colorado, where her husband, Dr. Clough Terrill Burnett, was an internist and cardiologist.

She was a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Dr. Charles Hoyt Burnett, of Chapel Hill, North Carolina; and two daughters, Mrs. Neil Taylor of Denver, and Mrs. Robert M. Strozier of Tallahassee, Florida.

Funeral services on Monday morning were conducted by the Reverend H. M. M. Nicholas in All Saints' Church. Inurnment was in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea.

Friends wishing to honor Mrs. Burnett's memory may do so in the form of donations to the Monterey County Heart Association.

KEYS TO BETTER CALLING — how we improve service and keep your out-of-town calls low in cost

Today, your long distance calls can go through in seconds where it once took minutes. Why? In most cases, operators like those in the top picture speed your out-of-town calls straight through with push-button dialing. Or perhaps you live in a place where you dial them direct yourself. And today's fast long distance phoning is yours at low cost, too. We've made it that way with radio-relay and cable networks that carry thousands of calls at once. With tiny transistors that cut down space and power needs. These improvements have helped us make long distance phoning a pleasure anytime. A pleasure, as the box at the right shows, that's priced right for everybody.

Dear Wilma:

The proposed Art Commission for Carmel looks to me as though it were the first really effective proposal in years to keep Carmel as it is (or, was, really). Here is an instrumentality, if properly constituted, which could restore to Carmel government some of the things for which our "Village" is supposed to stand.

More and more Carmel is living on its past reputation as a center of the arts and the artistic, the quaint and the quiet. I have nothing against any of the members of the present City Council, but isn't it a bit strange to have an artistic community governed entirely by businessmen. If you don't think that it CAN happen here just look at the motels (to single out only one of many eyesores) that have sprung up in the past few years.

Now I do not see how anyone could seriously find fault with the creation of an ordinary Art Commission. I can hardly see it getting away with the so-called tourist type of attraction, nor can I see any body seriously attempting "regimentation" in Carmel.

I envision the ideal Art Commission for Carmel as a body that would organize and, if necessary, operate artistic functions, and that would lend aid to organizations worthy of civic support. But also, I see in it a marvelous instrument to advise the planning commission and the council on matters of planning and architecture, to mention a few. It might just be that we might find the planning consultants we're supposed to need right here in Carmel, with a Carmel point of view.

The hitch in all this is the membership of the proposed Commission. In order to function properly the Art Commission must have broad powers, and it should be given a period of trial, preferably 10 years and certainly not less than five, in order to have a fair chance to operate.

The Art Commission, properly set up, is a challenge to the people of Carmel to prove that they can do what they're always talking about – fostering the arts and retaining the flavor of Carmel.

Fondest regards,
Edgar R. Bryant.

Carmel, California
May 10, 1958.

Dear Mrs. Cook:

I want to thank you specially for the last paragraph of your report on last Wednesday's city council meeting since I have tried in writing and speech to indicate the fact of fine artists living among us who ought to be heard by the public, but while the only thought is to bring performers from elsewhere, the local artists are put in a most undeserved back seat! Therefore, I, for one, would greatly like to see a committee formed that would have its objective a real service to the artists here of all kinds. Art councils, formed after the original one in Britain, are now operating in several cities encouraged by the American Symphony League (of which I am a member) and have found their efforts of great value for get-togetherism, as trustees for contributions to benefit cultural activities, the building of proper auditoriums, galleries, civic symphony, theatre and ballet, etc.

With the third Western Conference of the League this coming June 27 to July 14, at Asilomar, (Stanley Cummings is the Western member of the League's Board) a new opportunity is offered the public who can attend two weekend sessions of the Conductors' and Composers' Workshop to find out more of the working development of performance, details of which will be published shortly.

In the meantime let us get this local call out for a meeting concerning the Peninsula's and particularly Carmel's cultural status and closer friendly knowledge of not only those in our environs whose gifts have been proven elsewhere, but also those who have much yet to give, to counteract the growing influx of commercialism that threatens to bury the finer aspects of the community; for to keep the fame of Carmel clean, the predominating activities must remain clean and not cater to the coarser types. The proposed committee has therefore its work of good influence before it in which music, by its esoteric nature, is the most subtle, and of which even Plato said, "It sinks into the soul as nothing else can!" Many cities today are bringing forward their composers and performers. That badly used word "amateur" is too often applied in a derogatory sense when its true meaning is "lover" and lover of the Arts it certainly takes when every day associates show indifference! I want also to thank Gunnar Norberg for bringing this up in the Council.

In the Cause of the good music CAN DO.

Very sincerely yours,
Mary-Lindsay Oliver.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

In England a teacher by the name of Lyward conducts a school for juvenile delinquents. Looking at the foregoing sentence, it would seem he might be teaching them to be delinquents, but of course it is exactly the opposite of this which he is doing. He is doing it so well in fact that a book has been written about his success, the book being entitled Mr. Lyward's Answer. This is a book on delinquency which has been widely read and discussed both here and abroad, and should be of vital interest to anyone concerned with the youth of today. It was written by Michael Burn.

Speaking of youth, if you are feeling just too, too young these days, it's time you learned to dance the cha-cha-cha. We now have a small book which will teach you to dance the cha-cha-cha, the mambo, the samba, and the rumba. With diagrams, yet. It was written by Guy Barry and is entitled How to Dance the Cha-Cha-Cha. Dance and be gay.

Cookery all around the world is interesting, and books on the subject are a constant temptation to overeat. For those of us who love American cooking, and also for those inclined to snub our own cooking, we have a new book by Sidney Dean which is entitled Cooking American. It is a compilation of over 800 recipes collected from all over the United States and Canada. Read it and drool! And there is a new Sunset publication called Cooking Bold and Fearless. This is a collection of recipes from Sunset's Chefs of the West companionship. In both of these books, the collecting of recipes was done by men cooks, and in the Sunset book all the recipes are from men. A person who does not eat garlic except under duress has a hard time finding a good barbecue sauce for meat. There is a dandy by Pierre Coste on page 130 of the Sunset book. And one for broiled salmon invented by a private detective from Los Angeles which might well make nothing-but-fish-eaters of us all.

Our copy of Lover's Point by C. Y. Lee has come. So many reviews of this book have been published locally that it seems almost redundant to say much about it here. The scene is the Monterey Peninsula, the main character being an instructor at the Army Language School. The book is most sensitive, written with a clear brief style which is charming. You will enjoy reading Lover's Point.

Other new novels included this week are King Kong by Mona Gardner, A Time to Be Happy by Nayantara Sahgal, and They Came to Cordura by Glendon Swarthout. Plus two new mysteries. There's nothing like a good book on a cool summer evening before the fireplace — even the library fireplace. The two missing reference books came back. Thank you, whoever you are.

John Shephard, candidate for the office of district attorney of Monterey County, today listed his qualifications for the elective position.

In urging the vote of electors on June 3, Mr. Shephard reviewed his nine years as a successful defense attorney in Monterey County. He also was district deputy attorney here for two years. Commendation by Judge Stanley Lawson was accorded Mr. Shephard following the trial of John Kruse, Monterey soldier; at the conclusion of this trial Judge Lawson said he had "'never seen' a case better prepared . . . or better defended". He noted that Mr. Shephard had been appointed by the court to defend Kruse.

The candidate is a doctor of law, holds a master's degree in business administration, is a member of the bar, the United States Supreme Court and the U. S. Court of Military Appeals.

He is past president of the Monterey County Bar Association, a member of the executive committee conference of the state bar delegates, former disaster chairman of his area, active in civil defense and the Red Cross. He is a veteran of World War II.

Mr. Shephard's platform in a nutshell is: Equal and fair law enforcement!

To California

a glass of beer is many things

To many Californians, a glass of beer stands for their favorite beverage, a cool refresher—especially enjoyable with outdoor living. But whether you like beer, ice tea, or buttermilk, the fact remains that California benefits from our Brewing Industry.

The brewers and sellers of beer and ale paid over $16,200,000 in California taxes last year. Add this to the more than $87 million paid to Californians employed by the Brewing Industry and you've got over 100 million dollars—an important element in our state's economy.

QUESTION THE DUST

This multiple contraction is disintegration of million forms, potential substance of the relativity.

Unimprisoned it is spectacle, is atmospheric color—
condenser ring of rainbow melody on which the reindeer-rapid spectrum runs its light illusion.

What is dust
since even iron has its spectral part?—
I sift this minuteness between my fingers and pristine ages run . . .
It might be the cloth of the universe exhilarated into effect by electric Ray:

star and rock, and star,
fern and flower, beast and man—part from the All part in the Kingdom-related Polarity.
What was this dust, and what shall it become?

—VERA LA CLAUSTRA.

BEYOND ENVY

And if one wave
plunge higher than the rest, to curve redundant swirls round grass that tufts a tide-line, does the following creamed comber check its lesser arc for envy, rushing down tossed eddies to oblivion
~~because another's power has surpassed?~~
Inanimate creation lives beyond man's bars of feeling and of thought:
the waters are not tuned to jealousy.
Each wave knows its own good and thunders forth a separate excellence decreed of natural law that rules it. None exults, despairs nor judges.

—HELEN FAULKNER.

THE HORSEMAN

The stallion beat the silvery sands
With hoofs of flashing black,
In love responding to the hands
That urged him on his track.

A deep design his iron shoes
Impressed along the sea,
A record written in the ooze
Beside infinity.

Had horse and horseman passed that way?
The sand shone smooth and white,—
The rider rode with running day,
Behind them leaped the night.

—WALDEN GARRATT.

Vocal Soloists With Chamber Orchestra In May 25 Concert

Gilbert Boyer, conductor-pianist of Carmel, and director of the Carmel Chamber Music Society, announces that the Society will present another concert on Sunday afternoon, May 25. This will be the third in this, its third season, and will take place in the Golden Bough Circle Theatre at 5:00 o'clock.

The program will include four solo artists, a chamber orchestra, and a vocal quartet.

Gert Muser, baritone, will sing one of Johann Sebastian Bach's cantatas with orchestra. Eiko Yoshizato, violinist, will perform a Mozart concerto; and Marjorie Wurzmann one for piano, by Haydn. A special selection for solo harp with string orchestra will be presented by Mary Rosalie Haslett.

READINGS FOR THE RELUCTANT DEBUTANTE

Male roles in The Reluctant Debutante, now in preparation at the Golden Bough Circle Theatre, are still open. Readings for the parts will be held at the theatre, Casanova between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, just before rehearsal is called at 8:00 o'clock on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Those interested are asked to report to the director of the play, Ig Heniford, before rehearsal begins.

Nancy Nutter Married

Honeymooning in Carmel are Dr. and Mrs. Viktor Anton Straberger (Nancy Nutter) who were married in the Church of the Wayfarer by Dr. K. Fillmore Gray at 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon on May 3. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Allen Nutter of Burlingame, formerly of Carmel. She and her husband met when both were students at Stanford University.

During the Hungarian uprising in 1956 the two young people raised $30,000 for the refugees by writing letters to Rotary Clubs in the United States and Canada to which the groom had spoken while he was attending Stanford on a Rotary scholarship.

The Church of the Wayfarer was decorated with pink blossoms for the marriage. The bride wore a white Alencon lace dress and carried white butterfly orchids arranged with lilies of the valley.

She was attended by her sister, Susan Nutter, wearing a pink dress and carrying a bouquet of pink cymbidium orchids and hoya.

Dr. M. Spears of Menlo Park was best man for the groom.

The reception following the marriage was held on the terrace and in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Willson, friends of the bride's family.

On June 7 the bride and groom sail from New York to live in Wels, Austria, where the groom is a lawyer.

Field Trip On Saturday

Members of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society planning to attend a field trip to Moss Landing on Saturday are asked to meet at 9:00 o'clock in the morning at Construction Road.

Sayonara Prom Theme

Guests arriving at Carmel High School's Junior-Senior Prom on Saturday evening passed through a pavilion, over a curved bridge and found themselves in Japan. At the side of the bridge a fountain played in a large fern surrounded natural pool. Flowers floated in the water which mirrored a mural depicting far mountains. Real pines enclosed the mural and pool. Other pines placed about the dance floor pulled this scene into relation with the rest of the simulated garden. Refreshments were served from an authentic tea house. Ruth Rogers, chosen queen by the senior class, and her attendants, Lacy Williams and Gail Mackenzie, passed a flowering cherry tree to approach the throne. Junior Class president, Mat Laky, crowned her, and junior class secretary, Lucinda Lloyd, presented her with a gift. The orchestra played until midnight when the party, which the junior class gave for the seniors, ended. The gymnasium was transformed into the Japanese garden by 42 members of the junior class working under the direction of over-all chairman Mat Laky, assisted by Walt Helm, chairman, Steve Gann, co-chairman of construction; Lucinda Lloyd, chairman, Pam Morris co-chairman, decorations; Connie Chedester, publicity; Durell Decker, bids; Katy Fry, refreshments; and Sam Farr who supervised installation of the lighting effects.

April Organ Musicale

Popular music dominated the program of the April musicale of the Monterey County Chapter of the Hammond Organ Society held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Graham.

Featured Mabel Landaker played a number of popular hits, some arranged by herself, some by Hal Shutz with whom she has been studying in San Francisco. She also played several of Rachmaninov's Variations on a Theme by Paganini and a selection utilizing tubular chimes.

The program concluded with piano and organ duets by the Gimbel twins from Salinas and organ solos by Irene and Ed Graham. Serving of refreshments in the rumpus room followed.

Garden Party, Mortgage Burning

A garden party, the final meeting of the Home and Garden section of the Carmel Woman's Club, will be held next Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Philipine Crecelius and Miss Lucy Mills at Trevis Way and Mesa Drive. Those unfamiliar with the location, or who need transportation, or would like to consolidate with others driving cars in order to facilitate parking, are requested to be at the clubhouse at 1:40 o'clock where a caravan will be formed and transportation be available.

Miss Crecelius will talk to the members about her experiences in Gardening on the Mesa. Before and after the program members and guests are invited to stroll around the beautiful garden which Miss Crecelius has developed and where refreshments will be served by Mrs. Samuel B. Moore, hospitality chairman, assisted by Mrs. C. A. Broaddus, Mrs. C. U. Fonteneau, Mrs. Greene Erskine, Mrs. R. C. Goodspeed and Mrs. S. K. Thomas.

June 2, the final meeting of the club year, will be a very special day, and members are asked to make a note of this on their calendars. This is the long-awaited day when the clubhouse mortgage will be burned. At this meeting also officers for the coming year will be elected and club members will participate in a potluck luncheon. Further notice and details of this meeting will be published later.

Theresia Back From Europe

Mrs. Max Moser, Theresia of Carmel's Little Swiss Cafe, is back in her continental-style coffee, tea and refreshment shop after a two-month visit to Zurich, Switzerland; to make the acquaintance of her first grandson, Alexander Tuescher, now seven months old. Alexander, a handsome, alert baby, (according to the variety of pictures brought back by his grandma) is the son of Theresia's daughter, Mrs. Lorenz Tuescher, who lives in the Swiss city with her husband, Adolph, owner of an auto-chassis construction firm.

Theresia, her daughter and grandson took a brief vacation together in Ascona, the Italian part of Switzerland, for a few weeks following a round of Zurich entertaining during which Theresia renewed old friendships and saw family members. Mrs. Moser also spent some time in Paris. It was her intention to visit the Brussels Fair, until she learned that not a single hotel room or accommodation was available within 150 miles of Brussels.

Prince Bertil Drops In On Birgit And Dagmar

Shortly after noon yesterday Birgit Carlson heard someone enter her restaurant on Dolores Street.

"I looked around and there was His Royal Highness Prince Bertil of Sweden," she says.

Birgit and her sister, Dagmar, are from the town of Halmstad in the Province of Halland in Sweden. Prince Bertil is the Duke of Halland and has a summer home just outside Halmstad which was given to him by the people of the province for a fortieth birthday present.

Birgit and Dagmar served coffee and almond cake to His Royal Highness and chatted about Halmstad and his home there.

Before he left he signed the guest book, "Thanks for the coffee and the almond cake, Prince Bertil of Sweden." He is the uncle of the crown prince of Sweden and son of the king, and has been spending this week at Cypress Point Club.

aided his own cause by scoring the winning run.

This Saturday night at Sunset Field the Merchants will take on the Escalon Merchants from the San Joaquin Valley League. Escalon has always been a power in the San Joaquin area and is rated one of the top class-A teams in Northern California. Artellan's Merchants traveled to Escalon for a double-header last season and dropped both games to the hosts. However, the local Merchants are an improved team this season and figure to even up the score on their home field. First game of Saturday night's doubleheader gets underway at 7:00 o'clock with the second game slated for 8:45.

THREE PADRE TRACKMEN QUALIFY FOR NCS MEET

Carmel High's eleven qualifiers to the North Coast Section Divisional Meet at Fremont High last Friday found the competition pretty rugged in all the events and when the final race had been run, the Carmel track squad had dwindled to three qualifiers for the big North Coast Section Meet which will be held this Friday night at Fremont High in Sunnyvale. Carmel's three qualifiers include Alf Anderson, slender quarter-mile star, who picked up a fourth place with a good 5-.7 performance, Ted Smith, muscular pole-vaulter, who tied for third place with his vaulting buddy, Phil White. Ted and Phil topped 12-feet in the high stick event to pick up the third and fourth place points for the Padre team.

2700 Peninsula Boys In Scout-O-Rama At Fair Grounds Fri.-Sat.

Two thousand, seven hundred Boy Scouts of the Monterey Peninsula are taking part in the Scout-O-Rama at the Monterey County Fair Grounds tomorrow and Saturday. They will present a summation of what they have learned in scouting about this year's national theme Life For Tomorrow Through Safety Today.

All local scout units will have booths demonstrating safe living in fields ranging from the handling of knives, through wild animals and fire to water safety and railroad practices. A model railway will be used to show safety practices in the last category. Tides and ocean currents will be explained and puppets will be used in other demonstrations.

An entertainment unit from Fort Ord will put on performances and soft drinks, coffee, hot dogs and pancakes will be for sale.

The Scout-O-Rrama opens at 7:00 o'clock tomorrow evening and closes at 10:00. On Saturday, hours are from 1:00 o'clock in the afternoon until 9:00 in the evening.

Scouts will call at Peninsula houses on Saturday to sell tickets for the Scout-O-Rama. Sixty merchandise awards worth $3.50 each have been placed in "mystery houses" as well as seven $25 Series E Savings Bonds. Scouts will endeavor to win these awards by calling at all homes on the Peninsula.

visors adopts the Carmel Valley Master Plan. However, Mr. Campbell told Carmel Planning Commissioners that the County Planning Commission is "carrying out" the approval of a transition area of smaller than one acre sites at the Valley's mouth and that the Board of Supervisors' action on the transition zoning in the Carmel Valley Master Plan is "pending completion of plans."

He later stated that lots in the proposed Carmel Knolls subdivision would be governed by the slope of the land in the area. Lots of 10,000 square feet on a slope of 15-20 percent; 20,000 square foot lots for slopes of 20-40 percent; and slopes of over 40 percent would be from 20,000 square feet to an acre. He also told Carmel Commissioners that County Planning director Edward DeMars approved the transition area.

Carmel Commissioner Herbert Blanks, urging fellow commissioners to act on Carmel Knolls before May 27, said that the Valley mouth area is under zoning which permits hotels on 10-acre sites and office buildings on five acres if the County Planning Commission grants a use permit, otherwise the one-acre site interim zoning stands until the County Board of Supervisors acts on a smaller site transition area.

But no official plan of Carmel Knolls subdivision had been sent by the County Planning Commission to Carmel Commission for consideration yesterday afternoon. The Carmel Commission was, therefore, unable to act so set a special meeting for 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon on May, 26. In the meantime Carmel Planning Commissioners will study Carmel Knolls plans in committee. On May 26 they will state their recommendations on Carmel Knolls Valley mouth subdivision and forward these recommendations to the County Planning Commission for this body to consider on May 27.

Water Committee Takes Step One, Is All Set For Half Of Step Two

The stream of words flowed smoothly and evenly during most of Monday night's discussion of pro-and-con matters relating to possible public acquisition of local private water systems, at the dinner meeting, held in Seaside, of the Monterey Peninsula Water District Committee, composed of mayors, councilmen, and other official personnel from the various Peninsula communities.

There were occasional rapids, even some recurring eddies, and now and then some rather trying but brief stretches of "white water", but on the whole the long evening discussion traveled a substantially well-charted course and eventually reached its largely predictable end. This end was essentially achieved when Mayor Frank Shropshire of Pacific Grove moved, and Mayor Sam DeMello of Del Rey Oaks seconded, the proposition that the Water District Committee proceed to the taking of what was designated as "step one" in the "suggested course of action" presented in a report ordered by the committee to guide its action.

This report, prepared by Stone & Youngberg, a firm of municipal financial consultants, described its "step one" procedure as the preparation by the local water district committee of "a map of the boundaries of the proposed district and . . . subdivisions within the district". Since it was felt that, after all, only pencils and outline maps would be needed to take this "step one", the Shropshire-DeMello motion carried unanimously when it was put to a vote by the meeting's chairman, Councilman Ed Coffin of Pacific Grove, who then appointed a sub-committee to deal with "step one" matters.

Chairman of this committee was City Manager Murl M. Fritschle of Pacific Grove. Mayor John Chitwood was asked to name the Carmel member of this committee, but deferred his decision stating that he wished to consult Councilman Allen Knight, a committee member who was absent, before deciding the matter.

Though the entire water committee had acted specifically only with regard to proceeding with "step one" in the Stone & Youngberg report's recommendations, Coffin also appointed a second sub-committee to deal with a miscellany of matters which would pertain to the report's "step two". This step broadly concerns the matter of collecting and integrating and presenting relevant information concerning possible public ownership of water to the various city councils and other community organizations. The chairman of this committee was Seaside's Councilman George T. Cunningham. Mayor Chitwood named Councilman Tom May, who was present, as Carmel member of this committee.

Following discussion and approval of a proposal by Supervisor Tom Hudson that the chief counsel of the State Public Utilities Commission or his representative be invited to attend the next meeting of the entire water district committee, the date of that succeeding meeting was set as Monday, June 2, at a place to be announced later.

Carmel Councilman Gunnar Norberg, who had been involved in efforts, made some years ago, to determine the practicability of attempting to secure public ownership of local water facilities, asked Edwin A. Wells, Jr., the Stone & Youngberg representative who was present at the meeting Monday night, if his firm had considered the possibility of simply establishing a water resources district to acquire and operate the source and supply facilities. In such an event, the separate cities and county areas would buy the water from this publicly owned supplier, rather than themselves being fully participating owners in all parts of a fully integrated Peninsula-wide public water utility district. Norberg pointed that it had been true in the past that the several incorporated and unincorporated areas on the Peninsula had not always seen eye to eye on various matters, and that this might easily be the case again. Wells said this idea of a water resources district had been considered but it had been discarded as a posible solution in favor of the wholly integrated Peninsula-wide operation.

Council-Planners Score Zero In Motel Fight

the future," said Mayor Chitwood.

Gunnar Norberg, elected to the city council last month, had proposed in a campaign speech to curb the number of motels and chainstores "and received much public support," the mayor pointed out, and called on Mr. Norberg.

Councilman Norberg said a past president of the Motelmen's Association had told him they had rented billboards on Highway 101 because they had to bring tourists here to protect their six million dollar investment. If the motels continue to increase, soon they'll be demanding fiestas, entertainments and special events to bring tourists here to protect their sixteen million dollar investment, Norberg added. "The original purpose of Carmel was not to be a haven for motels, nor to become another Santa Cruz or Palm Springs. We are supposed to be a city of homes."

As for chain stores, "they infringe on the basic individuality of Carmel."

The approach, according to the city attorney, could be through zoning and density control, Norberg concluded.

At this, Planning Commission Chairman George Willox looked happier than he has in two years. "That is our view for a transitional zone in the master plan," he said. "The transitional zone would cut down the population density. If the council would spare the time to go over the master plan and understand it as we do, you would understand how this can be done under ordinance. If we could get the master plan accepted right away, then we could work out this problem," Willox added. And suggested they get together for that purpose soon.

It was past everybody's dinner time, not to mention "social hour." They worked out June 10, 4:30 o'clock to get together. To get the master plan, which has proved acceptable to nobody but the planning commission, accepted right away? —W. C.
